WOODCRAFT MAKES ME LAUGH!!

Has anything ever made you laugh at Woodcraft, that you would like to share with others?

If you would like to add to the growing list of "funnies" below, email your suggestions to website@thewoodcraftfolk.org

Venturers Danny Sturgeon, Peter Siret and Jack Medus are mucking about with a groundsheet when Danny invents a new game... "One of us hides under the sheet, and the other two have to guess who is under it." They then happily play for over half an hour, failing to guess who it is, despite more and more obvious clues being given. Bemused elfins look on...

Adam Hosler and Chrisman go to check on the poo-pit at Upcote, which is also used for food waste. They stare down at all the food floating in the pit and Chrisman says "At the next circle, we really must tell the kids to chew their food better."
